

Sinclair is using the public air to broadcast an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election, a clear violation of the social contract they accepted for using the public airwaves free of charge.

As usual, the FCC is failing in it's fairness responsibility. What do these people have on you? I am no longer appalled by either your ineptitude or your ignorance. I am simply resigned to live in a country controlled by media interests whose owners laugh at democracy and whose politicians wink in return. I am seriously thinking of moving to Canada.
